

Multiple Club La Costa Contracts Declared Null

Court: First Instance Court, Fuengirola, Spain

Case Date: June 2024

Summary:

Two separate cases were brought against Club La Costa, with plaintiffs alleging that their timeshare contracts were invalid due to missing key information.

Key Findings:

- In both cases, the court determined that the contracts did not specify the duration and property details, violating Spanish timeshare legislation.

Outcome:

The contracts were declared null and void. The plaintiffs were awarded £11,781 and £34,396, respectively.

Impact:

These decisions further emphasize the necessity for timeshare contracts to include all legally required information, providing a basis for similar claims by other affected consumers.
